The Shape made using the natural curves of the timber The chines and inwales were cut from the same pieces of timber to ensure that both halves bent with the same / uniform pressure. I used some small angle brackets and clamps to mock up the chines and inwales. I put in a temporary keel and thwart across the centre rib.

2019 January. I am thrilled to announce that my article on the Shannon Gandelows has been published (in French) by the magazine 'Chasse-Marée' based in Douarnenez, Brittany. Chasse-Marée publishes articles about the culture and techniques surrounding traditional boat building and its archives and museum have a high standing among the boat-building community.
